

The background of the cover is a stylized illustration in shades of yellow, orange, and black. It depicts a scene with several figures, some appearing to be in traditional or indigenous attire. There are palm trees and other tropical elements. A large, semi-transparent blue map of the Philippines is overlaid on the right side of the cover. In the top right corner, there is a crescent moon and a star. The title 'LUNDA YAN JOURNAL' is printed in large, bold, black letters on a white rectangular background in the upper left. Below the title, there is a small graphic of two figures embracing. Below that, the text 'A PUBLICATION OF THE TAMBUYOG DEVELOPMENT CENTER SPECIAL ISSUE 1996' is printed in smaller black letters. In the bottom right corner, the word 'ISLAND' is written in a blue, sans-serif font.
